Church History (CH 501)
Early -- Medieval
Dr. Dominic Aquila
January 2018

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is designed to help students think historically about pastoral ministry. It will seek to establish and present the pastoral concerns that motivated the writings, theological developments and ministries of Christian leaders. Students will be encouraged to look at present day ministry in light of historical and theological developments in the church.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- A. To acquaint students with the major personalities, schools of thought, and political, social and cultural trends which characterized the historical and theological development of the church.
- B. To widen students' comprehension of the pastor's and the historian's role as a creative and discerning thinker.
- C. To increase students' comprehension of past discussions about pivotal doctrines of the Christian church.
- D. To expand students' awareness of the lives of men and women in the history of the church who "knew" God through Jesus Christ and who can still influence pastoral ministry today.

COURSE TEXT
